Dear Visitors,

Following a period of semi-hibernation, the crew at ttt.com lifted its head above the frost line in late December and were promptly overrun by malicious spammers ...

This caused us to retreat, first by removing our not terribly user-friendly comments section, then by burrowing deep.

That was more or less of a ruse. The nine or so dedicated visitors found us busily posting on the site's Facebook page, easy enough to reach by searching for tinytowntimes.com on the FB links ... There you can leave comments galore and you don't have to friend us or even get counted in our hits list.

The same crew abides, although less frequently owing to the Polar Vortices that afflict our region.

More than that we have little to offer except our apologies for not populating these pages with more posts of tiny origin.

Yours,

Chad Coles,
