FOUND: BELOVED TINY OTISCO MISSING FROM DOWNTOWN AURORA STREET AREA SINCE SEPT. 21:

Tiny Town, USA – Downtown can use any kind of goo news right now. Here's some: Bridgette was posterizing her neighborhood on Tuesday night, Sept. 23. She was at Standard Art Supply on East Seneca, around the corner from where her beloved kitty Otisco went missing two days earlier. Bridgette, Otisco's loco parent, tells the story:

"We were outside Tuesday night papering the neighborhood with fliers in case anyone found him," she says.

"I had just finished putting up and distributing probably close to 100 of them," she says. "We stopped by Standard Art to admire some posters they had wheat-pasted on their building, and, as we were talking about them, I looked across the alley and he (Otisco) was right there watching us."

Bridgette adds: "After some coaxing he came over and was scooped up and cuddled for the rest of the night! Well, after we went back out to go retrieve all the fliers we had just distributed. Ha-ha. Someone else who had been in contact with me about him emailed to say he was glad we had found him and congratulated me on having the most famous cat in Ithaca, at least for a few days (thanks to social media bombardment) hahaha. What a great community we live in."

"We are so happy to have him home."

We are, too!
